BEST OF LUCK TO US

One of the more difficult problems that arises in weighing men's qualifications for the presidency is that pertaining to their "experience."

The question is most critical when one of the two nominees is an incumbent President. For then the argument naturally goes up: Why switch to a man who doesn't know the job?

This can be persuasive if the election comes in the middle of a war or economic emergency. If the incumbent appears to have been doing well, and if his challenger seems unusually limited in capacity,

But to accept the argument flatly and automatically is to contend that the incumbent ought ever to be unseated if that were to be governing. That would be no better than electing an election when an incumbent was running.

We can't allow ourselves to figure it that way. A given nominee's courage, abilities, energy and imagination—in the voter's view far outweigh the fact he has not yet been tested in the job.

They may feel that talent, nerve, and greenness are better combination than experience and maturity.

The matter has to be judged differently when neither of the nominees has served as President. Then it becomes a thing of measuring assorted kinds of nonpresidential experience.

The hard truth to be faced is that no other experience wholly duplicates that gained in the presidency, though some parallels can be drawn. But largely guesswork is still what outside experts can best fit a man for the job.

Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri has more high-level government executive experience in his background than any candidate in either party. Does this necessarily make him best of the pack?

Again that has to be placed Vice President Nixon's seven years of duty reasonably close to the White House. Considerably more important, though, is Sen. Edward Kennedy's 14 years as Senate majority leader, steering a host of vital measures to passage; Sen. John F. Kennedy's 14 years of battling in Senate and House for many important national proposals; and Sen. Hubert Humphrey's similar experience.

There really is no way to be sure, which background is most suitable, any more than we can be wholly certain which combination of character and talent will serve the nation best.

History shows that "giants" often prove pretty ordinary men. And men of seeming moderate attainments sometimes go down as greats or near-greats.

Election year inescapably is a time of guessing. At each such milestone we must hope that the American people's luck, which has averaged pretty high, will continue good.

BIG GLASS WINDOW

The radio and television networks have always given us exhaustive, and often exhausting coverage of the quadrennial national conventions. It'll be the same in 1968.

There's a report that they approached Republicans hopefully with a proposal to limit this year's coverage to "highlights," since Vice President Nixon is now seen as a shoo-in for the GOP presidential nomination.

And some could have told them the answer would be "no." To the public, nominating for president and vice president and drafting a platform may be the main business. To hundreds of politicians it also is their show.

When else but on these four-year occasions do they get to step into the big glass window and perform for us? To see how it is with one great moment to be their realization, right at home and across the land.

Take away the camera with the little red light and they might as well mail in their presidential ballots.

CONCRETE ABSTRACTIONS

In America, New York City has no real challenger as the nation's cultural capital. Yet in such major cities as painting, it has until recently always been not a leader but a follower of European trends.

According to Fortune magazine, however, that situation does not hold so far as abstract, avant-garde painting goes. In an issue wholly devoted to the city, it discovers that New York successfully exports its non-objective art, and commands good prices both here and abroad.

You can find some pretty good arguments as to whether the stuff is really worth good money or any money at all. But the fact is that not only private collectors but European museums and galleries are buying New York's abstract works.

New York of course long has wanted to come of age among world cultural capitals. It may be a good deal too early to tell whether its new-world leadership and fame in art, publishing, TV, and America, will be confirmed even a dozen years hence.

Why don't careless drivers realize that bars on jail windows are not there to keep them out?

Some husbands give dictation all day, and get it all evening.

Man Discovered Dead in Trailer

WENDELL: Feb. 11—A 55-year-old Wendell ranch hand was found hanging in the closet of his house in the middle of the night. His neighbor alerted officers he had not been seen for several days.

Owyhee county coroner Dr. C. G. Blair, route 1, Wendell, had been dead about four hours before law enforcement officers found him hanging from a clothes rod in the trailer. A half inch rope was looped over the rod and tied to a nail in the ceiling. The victim had been under a physician's care for several months.

Blair lived alone in the trailer on the south side of town, one mile south and one mile east of Wendell. The farm family noted they had not seen him for several days and had called the police to check on him. ## Future Spacemen's Home

Newly completed space cabin simulator will be "home" for a month for two future spacemen in scheduled experiment at new Texas air force research center.

Answers to Space Problems Sought at Air Force Center

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (NEA)—Staccato explosions that sound like machine gun fire through the steamy corridor of a space cabin halfway. In a small room off one of the steaming corridors a group of white-coated scientists huddle over a control panel, shouting a running note—a mouse in a plastic bag.

Attached to the rodent's back is a tiny electronic device that tracks its movements in the space cabin. Inside the mouse's body, the radioles register other changes inside the mouse's body. The radioles also record the scientist's use of the air force service medical center, located at Brooks air base.

The new 18-million-dollar, six-story building is the air force's main research arm—for tackling medical problems that must be solved before man can fly safely in space.

These include the effects of weightlessness, radiation and acceleration on temperature and body fluids, effects of reaction to strong vibrations, intense light and various atmospheric gases.

Up to the potential hazards of space, the scientists have turned their attention. One of their first experiments is "an animal first." The result is that the center often has the atmosphere of a sterilized medical office.

Trained monkeys, soon to be fired into space, learn how to use with special mechanical devices to open doors. Other monkeys learn how to use signal scientists Earth whether they are still alive.

Special glass bowls containing special plants—which convert the carbon dioxide they exhale into oxygen. How they react to the plants is being studied to see if they will be able to live on the moon.

Dogs, cats and rabbits live quietly in sterilized cages recovering from delicate operations performed to determine how their internal organs withstand simulated space flight.

Missiles Field Advances but Its Language "Still Chinese"

NEW YORK, Feb. 11 (NEA)—Operational development for the first American missiles were first used. An initial mention is a 13th century Chinese chronicle called T'hung-chien-chi, which reports the battle of Kai-shan.

We've all come a long way since then. So have missiles. But the language is still Chinese.

According to worried technicians, our vocabulary in the missile program, our terminology, is the tailgate of our diffuse efforts in the missile race.

Take a quick look at some of the latest developments in the field of rocketry and you'll find them from the latest edition of the space age dictionary:

ABMA: Air ballistic missile division.

AFBARD: Air force ballistic missile division—a division of headquarters air research and development command.

V-2: Most successful German missile of World War II.

APFTC: Air force missile test center. Removable under the nose cone of a missile launching site at Cape Canaveral.

ARDO: Air research and development command. Responsible for development of the space program.

ARM: American Rocket society.

AMRS: Advance reconnaissance satellite.

HAC: Headquarters air mobility command.

NACO: National advisory committee for aeronautics.

NASA: National aeronautics and space administration, replacing the national advisory committee for aeronautics.

Polio Patient Goes to Salt Lake City

Barbara Kurtz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Kurtz, Wendell, who was stricken with paralytic polio at 16 months, now is entering the respirator and rehabilitation center at General hospital, Salt Lake City. She has progressed from the iron lung to a rocking bed and chest respirator and through therapy has learned to paint-type and is able to write her name, even though she was left with no movement in her arms by the disease. (Staff engraving)

Wendell Girl Paints, Types Despite Paralytic Polio Bout

WENDELL, Feb. 11 — Barbara was 16 shortly after being graduated from Wendell high school.

Emil Kurtz, her father, had to drive 120 miles to Salt Lake City to enter the respirator and rehabilitation center at General hospital.

The trip was made in a station wagon with his wife, Mrs. Jerome, her brother-in-law, Mrs. Kurtz, and Mrs. Arthur Murphy accompanied her. Mrs. K. K. Murphy, a widow, took the trip well though she was tired.

Barbara was stricken with paralytic polio June 8, 1956, when she received treatment from skilled physical and occupational therapists. Since she had no movement in her arms, she had to learn to use a mouth wand which she manipulates with her neck muscles. Under the care of therapists one of her main interests came to light, painting.

With the mouth wand she painted both oil and water colors.

Her work was shown at the "Banana Boat" show.

After a month of intensive medical treatment, Barbara was released to the iron lung and placed in a rocking-bed-and-chest-respirator.

No longer in the confines of the iron lung, Barbara began to re-

Burley Rotarians Hold 'Kids' Party

BURLEY, Feb. 11—Highlight for the younger generation at the Burley Rotary club's annual children's party was the arrival of the "Merry Milkmen" from KED-TV, Idaho Falls, held in the dining room at Cousin Roy's Tuesday evening. Around 100 children, their parents and grandparents attended.

Dale Shelly served as master of ceremonies and Paul Hansen and Carl Hansen were co-chairmen of the party. Included on the program were two vocal selections by Mrs. Austin with the "Milkmen" and by Mrs. Bill Rue, a dance number by Gay Keen of the Shirley Dunes school of dance, and pantomime numbers by the "Banana Boat" trio.

One hundred children were installed in the Kurts home. Other equipment was provided by the organization and materials to assist with her comfort and enjoyment.

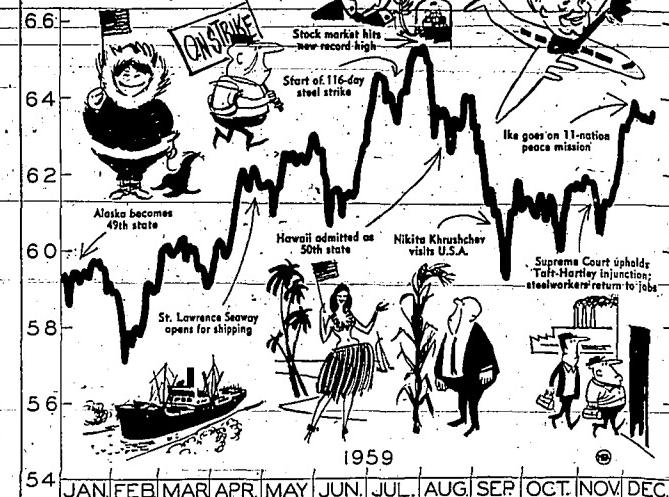

Since returning home with the help of her mother, Barbara has diligently continued her exercises and has learned to move the fingers of her right hand and arm. She has learned to type her name and other accomplishments.

Barbara sells cards, novelty gifts and her paintings. She is appreciated by visitors because her kindness extended her and never seems to tire of visitors. She enjoys reading and wishes to thank the Rotarians for their encouragement and helped her.

Petition Filed

A petition for letters of administration in the estate of Anna G. Gatchell, 80, died Feb. 1, was filed in probate court Wednesday by Arthur F. Gatchell, a son.

The action states Gatchell died in the home of his daughter, Anna G. Gatchell, 80, in Ketchum, Feb. 1, 1958. His wife died in 1956.

Probate court fees were set at $25.

Business highlights included the raising of prime bank rates from 3½ to 4 per cent, then to 4½ and finally four per cent.

U. S. treasury's offering of bonds paying five per cent interest went over big. The outlook for 1960: A much better year, say the pundits.

Care of Your Children

By ANGELO PATRI

Preschool teachers and parents, more than a few I fear, are giving neither time nor opportunity to "the children" to exercise their imagination.

It is the teacher who, after a brief "juncheon" preceded the pinocchio meal held Friday afternoon at the Pridmore, has the job.

Secretaries will be received by Mrs. E. A. Strigell, Mrs. Retta Powell and Mrs. Russell Powell.

Title Match Scheduled in Montana Town

BOZEMAN, Mont., Feb. 11 (UPI)—

The Glenn Fuller—Jerry Glardine National Boxing association mid-weight title fight will be held Saturday, April 20.

The decision to hold the title bout in the Montana State capital fieldhouse was made after a meeting this afternoon by Norm Rothschild, Syracuse, N. Y., co-promoter of the fight with the Intermountain Boxing Association.

Rothschild met with the MBC fieldhouse board and manager Bob Purdy.

The fight would set 12,500.

The fight will be televised nationally except for a five-state blackout. Cut off will be Montana, Wyoming, "the West," and Missoula.

Boxer and Missoula have been the only two sites considered for the title bout since Frankel eliminated last week.

The title scrap will be Montana's first since Jack Dempsey fought Tom Gibbons at Shelby July 4, 1923.

Vandals Set Eastern Tour Next Season

MOSCOW, Feb. 11 (UPI)—All four of the old northern division athletic rivals are on the University of Idaho's 1968-69 basketball schedule, athletic director Bob Gibb said today.

Gibb confirmed in an interview three eastern teams, and possibly more, will visit Idaho during a Vandals road trip next fall, the first in several years.

A double home-and-home slate is being worked out with Western Oregon, State and Washington State and a single home-and-home schedule with Washington, he said.

Washington State and Idaho's new university will be on the Vandals' eastern swing.

"We will have a full 26-game schedule again," Gibb said. "It's the old northern division opponents."

He said there is no indication now Idaho basketball will be invited to the Big 8, but it may partly due to the double home-and-home agreement and partly because Idaho generally is meeting the standards of the conference.

"With our games with three teams, we may be forced with trimming somewhere to get them all in," Gibb said. "It's an awkward change was quite a switch because it doubled our games with some schools."

Good Operation Needed If Demands on Idaho's Fisherries Are to Be Met

BOISE, Feb. 11 (UPI)—Sound management programs are necessary if the state fish and game department is to meet the demands placed upon Idaho's fishery resources, Gov. Robert E. Smylie said Wednesday. "Last year," Smylie said in his weekly news column, "15 state hatcheries produced a total of 633,268 pounds of fish, a record somewhat greater than the amount for 1968 and less than the goal for this year. Almost as important is the fact that new fish transportation units haul a greater number of pounds of trout per load, and deliver the fish to Idaho streams in much better condition.

"Lake and stream habitat restoration and non-game trout are another growing practice, which increased the number of piscatorial facilities available for recreation. Last year, more than 250,000 pounds of carp were eradicated from just one relatively small lake under this program. Similar projects will be continued in other parts of the state."

"These are just two examples of what is being done under a fisheries management plan that is gauged to meet present and future pressures on the wildlife resource. And the money is well spent, because it is financed primarily through the sale of fishing and hunting licenses to residents and tourists."

Smylie said records of the fish and game department show there were 233,000 licensed anglers in Idaho last year, who made an average of 11 fishing trips during the season and caught an average of 83 fish.

But the governor added: "There was one exception. The governor did not catch 83 fish. He tried, but apparently the fish are smarter than he is."

Henry Wouldn't Ban Cuba's Sugar; Results Are Foreseen

BY HENRY MCLEMORE
I see eye to eye with Sen. Styles Bridges, New Hampshire, on most things, especially nuclear war. I am not so sure about his "no Christmas shopping" to name a few—but I can't go along with him in his proposed chastisement of Cuba.

The senator wants the United States to stop buying sugar from Cuba. He says it would be better to stop calling our country names, setting U.S. products aside, and acting like a Hitler (g.) with a heard.

I am all for letting Cuba "know just where we stand," as the senator puts it, but not by what he means suggested. And this isn't because I'm a sugar lover. In fact, I am not. I am a sugar hater. I am the stuff—a day (16 calories) to be snuffed out in a determined effort to be "able" to get into last year's sumo.

My objection to boycotting Cuban sugar is the fear that sugar would lead to other commodities, and the ban on Cuban products would lead to a ban on old school ties, or a ban on kippered herring, to mention a few necessities.

France is another country that is annoyed by the U.S. as a large part of the time, and how to do about it is a question. To buy out French poodles, French toast and snails? It would be tough going, and matters would be made worse before someone suggested that we turn the screws on Cuba even more by refusing to buy Cuban sugar. Who would look like a woman, a sack or a trap?

"The more one thinks about the more one realizes its danger. A spat between the U.S. and India—and no more tiger skin rugs, no more elephants for zoos and circuses. An argument with Japan would deprive us of half the things we want. And the more we think off Africa, the more tiger skin rugs, off with Africa could put an end to diamond engagement rings, and how can American girls have their hearts set on getting one of those things."

I trust the senator from New Hampshire will reconsider.
